Volunteer Website Editor

About the Organisation

SEED Madagascar is a British Charity working in partnership with communities in the southeast of Madagascar. We integrate high-quality community health, sustainable livelihoods; education infrastructure and conservation programmes to support long term, sustainable change and add to international best practice through research and publication across all of our programmatic areas. We are now looking for entry level interns wishing to gain experience to work alongside our team.

Position Overview

This position offers an excellent opportunity to gain experience working with an award-winning international charity on their website, marketing and digital platforms. Working closely with the Communications and Marketing team, your skills will be used to maintain and improve the website, track performance metrics over time, contribute to campaigns and fundraising, and publicise the charity's programmes to an international audience.

This position can be worked from home, has flexible hours and is estimated to require 2-3 hours per week.

Duties and Responsibilities

- Manage updates to website pages via a CMS (Content Management System)
- Publish blogs, press releases and other publications to the website
- Participate in SEED's small online marketing and PPC meetings once a month
- Monitor and provide feedback on SEED's website performance using Google Analytics
- Assist in the creation of media campaigns such as Christmas Appeals
- Improve website content for SEO (Search Engine Optimisation) rankings
- Work with the Media and Communications Officer to improve marketing and communications
- Work with the Programmes team to design an eye-catching and informative update to how our work is presented
- Proactively suggest and make improvements to keep the website looking fresh and engaging

Person Specification

- Experience of creating or updating a website using a CMS
- Experience using Concrete5, Wordpress or similar
- Experience of basic image editing and graphic design skills
- Previous experience of Google Analytics, HTML and CSS knowledge and/or an understanding of SEO basics would be desirable
- Critical eye for proofreading content according to organisational style and guidelines
- Be fluent in English to a high standard
